Letter To Editor

February 5, 1974

Dear Sir:

I think your readers would be interested in knowing that the Task Force Committee, appointed by the Virginia Legislature, to study the Effect of the Equal Rights amendment, have just issued their report. This report is devastating to the ERA.

The Task Force Report proves that there is nothing whatever ERA will do to benefit women in Virginia, and that there are no Virginia laws which adversely discriminate against women which ERA will remedy. The Force Reports shows that ERA will not give women more employment rights, more property rights, more marital rights, or more family rights. ERA will not help women with respect to jobs or home. The Task Force Report proves that there are no advantages for women in ERA, and many disadvantages.

In the area of domestic relations, the Task Force Report concludes that ERA would require amendments to Virginia law which "would impose further obligations on women, rather than accord them further rights."

In the area of criminal law, the Task Force Report states that ERA would require Virginia "to integrate the sexes in its prison system."

The report goes on in much detail proving more reasons as to why we should defeat this amendment in committee. Is this what the average woman and man wants for his or her way of life "you bet, it isn't."

The time has come for the "unorganized majority" to let their voices be heard in Richmond.

Sincerely,
Alyse O'Neill, Chr.

Pamplin

Dale Baldwin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Baldwin, entered the Virginia Baptist Hospital last Sunday for treatment and x-rays.

Mr. and Mrs. David Savitz of Salem, Va., visited her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Woodrow Williams last week end.

Mrs. Ada Lucado returned home last week after a visit with her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Lucado and family in Greensboro, N.C.

Our sympathy is extended to the families of Mr. Holly Gobble and Mr. Edner Mann.

The Pastor Speaks

For everything there is a season and a time for every matter under heaven:
a time to be born, and a time to die;
a time to plant, and a time to pluck up what is planted;
a time to kill, and a time to heal;
a time to break down, and a time to build up;
a time to weep, and a time to laugh;
a time to mourn, and a time to laugh;
a time to cast away stones, and a time to gather stones together;
a time to embrace, and a time to refrain from embracing;
a time to seek, and a time to lose;
a time to keep, and a time to cast away;
a time to rend, and a time to sew;
a time to keep silence, and a time to speak;
a time to love, and a time to hate;
a time for war, and a time for peace.
What gain has the worker from his toil?

I have seen the business that God has given to the sons of men to be busy with. He has made everything beautiful in its time; also he has put eternity into man's mind, yet so that he cannot find out what God has done from the beginning to the end.

Topic: Victorious in Death.
Scripture: John 19:16-42.

Jesus . . . said, "It is finished"; and he bowed his head and gave up his spirit. John 19:30.

In one of the Sprunt Lectures which he delivered at the Union Theological Seminary in Richmond some 30 years ago, Dr. John A. Mackay, then president of Princeton Theological Seminary, declared that Christian theology was born in Peter's confession, "Thou art the Christ," and that it died on the cross. Dr. Mackay's explanation continued that it had its rebirth in Jesus' conversation with two disciples on the road to Emmaus, but for this week's International Sunday School lesson, the emphasis may be given to its death, together with the death of its central figure, its Author and Perfecter, on the cross.

If ever a mission gave indication of ending in failure, it was that of Jesus at Golgotha. If ever a ministry gave sign of coming to naught, it was that of Jesus when He was crucified. If ever a life appeared to end in ignominy and disgrace, it was that of Jesus on the cross. When the leaders of His own people turned Him over, under false charges, to the chief official representing the foreign overlords of Palestine, Jesus was so lacking in earthly influence that the Roman governor acquiesced in the demands of the Jewish leaders of His condemnation, although Pilate Himself found Jesus guiltless of offense.

Condemned to be executed, Jesus appeared a failure to the crowd which thronged Golgotha to see the spectacle of three men crucified. So the soldiers and the crowd-one marvels at man's inhumanity to man-mocked Jesus in the hour of His agony and humiliation, when He was put to death by the most cruel and degrading form of execution, that used for criminals in the provinces and slaves, never for Roman citizens, the elite of the day.

Despite the humiliation, the shame, and the physical pain which He experienced in being crucified, Jesus saw it as the culmination of His mission, the essential event in accomplishing what He came into the world to do. Those who heard Him say, "It is finished," must have thought that He meant that His ministry, His mission, His teaching, His life were all ended. But for Jesus it meant that the purpose of His coming had been achieved. The soldiers might gamble unconcernedly over His tunic, the spectators might jeer. How disheartened His disciples were may be seen in the despairing torment of one of them, "But we had hoped that he was the one to redeem Israel."

Even in His humiliating execution, Jesus profoundly impressed some. One of the two malefactors, between whom He was crucified (Jesus came to redeem sinners and died between two of the worst sort), recognized the kingship of Jesus, as He hung on the cross. The centurion, in command of the Roman soldiers who carried out the execution of Jesus and the two robbers, also recognized the divine quality in Jesus. "Truly this man was the son of God," he declared as he observed Jesus on the cross. Crucifixion was not entirely defeat and disgrace.

The world often makes it difficult for a person to be true to the highest purposes and loyalties. People frequently have to sacrifice much to keep faith with what they believe to be right and true. For some, the struggle is too great, and they compromise. A few years ago, the motion picture, "A Man for All Season," in a moving portrayal of Sir Thomas More's dedication to principle, showed a man willing to give up royal preferments and life itself rather than compromise his convictions. Resounding down the centuries comes Martin Luther's refusal to compromise his principles, "I cannot and I will not recant anything, for to go against conscience is neither right nor safe. God help me. Amen. Here I stand, I cannot do otherwise."

It is hard when decisions what is right and just compels one to risk even life itself. For was necessary to accomplish His mission steadfastly kept. His refusing to take an Yet His was the way and enduring victory. demonstrated the true divine paradox, He lost his life in God's save it.

Beef prices are up again! Unfortunately we are now paying higher prices for beef today. This is just another obstacle to meeting the food budget. But, don't despair as there are still some bargains down the grocery aisle.

Poultry prices are zooming downwards with many excellent poultry "features". Even that holiday favorite, turkey, is decreasing in price. If you're unable to use a large turkey, have your butcher cut a turkey in half so you can take advantage of lower prices. Eat one half and freeze the other for future meals.

In the poultry area the chicken counter is the area for "bargain" hunters. Today's chicken has been design bred, broiler-fryers are meat-type chickens raised specifically for eating. As a budget saver chicken is great because of its low cost and versatility.

Just think about it, you can use so many different ingredients with chicken, it can be prepared in many ways and purchased in many different forms. There are over 30 different forms of chicken in the retail store.

Now is the time to pick out your chicken to brush up an old recipe or experiment with a new one. Get ready for the 1974 Delmarva Chicken Cooking Contest. Start the new year out right, enter the contest and get rewarded for that delicious favorite.
